

Inspiration Photo

Peter Lindbergh's ability to capture compelling realism through his black and white photographs inspired me to take this picture. His ability to create beautiful pictures of models in stark unattractive locations motivated me to appreciate these types of scenes as perfect locations to shoot. This picture captures realism, for the model is shot while in action rather than while posed. A natural depth of emotion is also seen in this picture rather than an artificial posed emotion.

Gala K. Pazos

Student Photo